MARKET REACHES STAGNANT STATE

Technical Position Good, but It Is Deserted by All Save Professionals.

NEW YORK, January 19,—The stock market to-day fell into a neglect so profound as to resemble stagnation. The professional traders on the floor of the Stock Exchange apparently had the market to themselves, and their efforts to move prices met with so little success that they practically abandoned them and left the market in its dull and uninteresting state the latter part of the session. The technical position of the market was called good, in that the floating supply of stocks seemed to be small and comparatively light buying orders brought marked results in the price movement. The supposition that E. H. Harriman is to assume closer relations to the New York Central continues strong in speculative quarters, and that element looks for developments in that urrection at to-morrow's meeting of the directors.
